How much does a gallon of propane cost?

Prices range from $2.30 to $2.80 per gallon as harvesting season in autumn leads to short-term spikes. Texas, Oklahoma, and Louisiana have the lowest propane delivery prices in the nation, ranging from $2.00 to $2.40 a gallon in 2025. Low winter demand and proximity to Gulf Coast refineries keep costs down.

How much does propane cost in 2025?

Residential propane delivery prices vary widely across the U.S. The overall average is $2.10 to $3.20 per gallon in 2025, but regional variations remain the norm. Maine, Vermont, and New Hampshire will most likely face higher propane prices because of lower winter temperatures and dependence on long-distance supply chains.
